

LIBERTY MOTOR SATISFIES ALLIES

Out of the mass of Congressional and other official investigations the Liberty motor has emerged with a clean slate and has already found its way into the good graces of the allied forces.

Little real criticism of the motor itself has been heard for a long time. Despite the somewhat unsatisfactory condition of the aircraft industry, as disclosed by the Senate report, the Liberty motor has come in for little blame.

Long Held Remarkable. Admirers of the motor who have contended from the first that it was one of the most remarkable pieces of mechanism ever produced in America have now adopted the "I-told-you-so" attitude, as new stories of the motor's prowess come from the western front.

The latest story tells of a group of American aviators, using planes equipped with Liberty motors, outspeeding their German rivals. Long ago the allies declared the motor to be a most valuable contribution on America's part. Great Britain's indorsement was given weeks ago after the motor had been thoroughly tested.

The French have the same high opinion of it. Testifying before the Senate committee, Edouard de Billy, acting high French commissioner, said:

"You can never make too many of them. The Liberty motor is so much appreciated that it is asked for and demanded by the French aviation authorities and the Italian authorities."

Best-Known Motor. "It is now one of the best-known motors which has been produced. It is the finest achievement which has been accomplished by the American aircraft administration, and we are all very strongly impressed by it."

"The praise that I would give the Liberty motor has already been given by all the French officers and the aviation section of the French army is now asking a great many of these motors. It is a very rapidly climbing plane, and has given us good results."

$1-A-DAY MENU PROPOSED HERE

District Food Administrator Wilson's campaign against the high price of food in Washington restaurants today was carried into the final stages by the discussion of a special $1 a day menu with the lunch room committee and local restaurateurs.

During the conference it was suggested that the dinner, including meat, should cost 50 cents; breakfast, 15 cents, and luncheon, 20 cents. The breakfast menu tentatively discussed provides for an egg, stewed fruit, and a beverage.

"These standardized menus will offer an excellent and wholesome variety of food to Washingtonians and at the same time tend to reduce prices materially," said Mr. Wilson today. "Restaurant owners say that high prices are caused to a great degree by the necessity of keeping special selections of food ready for the chance customer. With the standard menus this objection will be eliminated and prices reduced."
